Convoys of food, water and medical supplies are flowing to victims of Hurricane Andrew from Glades residents who are giving of their time, money and talents to help.

At first the efforts seemed disorganized, but now a centralized group has been formed to help.

The Glades Relief Volunteers have grown in number this week and they have made several trips to the Dade County area.

The main organizers have been Ron Pittman with Glades General Hospital, Larry Simmons, Jr. with Larry's Appliance and Video, Clay Connell with Badcock Furniture and Luisa Alvarez.

Mr. Connell said a group of over 100 volunteers went last Saturday in 21 vehicles and fed between 6,000 and 7,000 people hot meals and distributed relief supplies.

They went back down on Sunday with a group of about 75 and fed the same amount of people.

One of the problems with the victims is getting to the areas that need help. Roads are so congested going into Miami that it is hard to get through.

The Glades Relief Volunteers have police and sheriff escorts helping them get through, according to Mr. Connell.

"Several people from West Palm Beach came over to help us because they heard about us on the radio," Mr. Connell said. "They helped both days."

He said assisting in the effort are many local individuals and businesses, including the Sugar Cane Growers Cooperative.

"The have given us their full support," said Mr. Connell, "including buses and drivers, tractors to pull the trailers, toilets and other supplies."

Others helping the efforts include South Bay Growers, Osceola Sugar, Wilkinson Cooper, U.S. Sugar, Glades Roofing and Pioneer Growers.

Police want to talk to William Noland "Tiger" Freeman, a Belle Glade man who is a suspect in a fire that did over $100,000 damage to the Days Inn motel Aug. 19. An arrest warrant has been issued for Freeman.

Police say they believe Freeman set fire to five vacant rooms at the Days Inn in the early morning hours of Aug. 19 causing over 50 guests to be evacuated.

Lt. Jack Fulenwider with the Belle Glade Police Department said Freeman, age 28, allegedly set fire to the rooms for revenge because he was evicted about two weeks earlier by Days Inn Manager Rick Elliot.

Freeman is five foot, nine inches tall and weighs approximately 210 pounds. His last known occupation was as a tree trimmer.

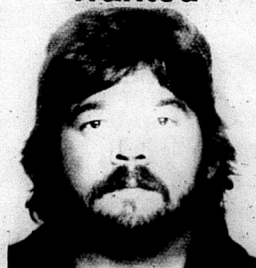

"We believe he headed to the north central Florida area," said Lt. Fulenwider.

Three rooms at the back of the motel on the top floor were completely destroyed in the fire. Two other rooms on the north wing bottom floor were also destroyed.

The motel, located at 1075 South Main Street, is owned by Belle Glade Innkeepers and is one of 45 motels owned by the company.

"Painful" budget proposed by City of Belle Glade

By Brenda Bunting

Belle Glade—Money woes are nothing new for the City of Belle Glade, but this year the crunch seems especially hard.

Belle Glade staff proposed a tight, but balanced budget during a workshop meeting last Saturday afternoon.

"It's a lean budget with little room for error," says Belle Glade City Manager Lomax Harrelle.

The budget contains "serious and far-reaching constraints for fiscal year 1992-1993," said Mr. Harrelle, and contains a hiring freeze, no salary increases and the loss of twelve full-time positions.

The cuts are necessary, according to Finance Director Bill Underwood, because the city, which gets 44% of its finances from property taxes, has seen the assessed value of homes go down for the past five years.

The city expects to receive $5,228 less in ad valorem taxes than last year.

The $16 million budget contains "cutbacks heretofore unparalleled in the city's recent history," said City manager Lomax Harrelle in a memo to the city commission.

"Departments have adjusted and requested until they have reached the point where further deletions would have a drastic effect on the level of services provided to the City," he added. "They not only have trimmed any excess fat, they literally have cut spending to the bare bone."

Seven positions will be eliminated in Public Safety, one in Public Works, one full time and one part-time position in Finance, two in Recreation and one position in the Planning and Building department.

"This austere budget has no room for the operation of the Rescue Medical Unit," Mr. Harrelle said, "and there's no staff available to access the computer system on weekends."

To see how the budget may affect residents, see page 3

U.S. Sugar helps with relief effort

U.S. Sugar has undertaken and coordinated several projects to help with the relief effort in Dade County.

Three convoys that included over 40 vehicles of heavy equipment, 80 volunteer workers, water supplies, portable toilets, and a food kitchen from U.S. Sugar arrived in the disaster area

Thursday, Aug. 27.

A filed kitchen was set up at the South Dade Government Center to provide meals for rescue workers and volunteers. The kitchen, which will provide 1,200 meals daily to paramedics, fire fighters, police officers, public works personnel, and other rescue workers, started serving meals on Thursday. The food is being cooked in Clewiston and trucked to the center, where it is being prepared and served by U.S. Sugar cooks, and members of the "Ladies of the Lake," a volunteer organization of wives of Clewiston area farmers.

A total of 126 portable toilets were set up at 14 official disaster center locations, medical facilities, and distribution centers in the stricken area. The toilets are being serviced by the company daily.

Twenty-seven water tanks, and drinkable water were provided for 14 official disaster center locations, medical facilities, and distribution centers, including: three 300-gallon tanks for Baptist Hospital; Purdue Medical Center and a medical facility in the Homestead area to provide water for dialysis; and three 300-gallon tanks of drinking water for the South Florida Water Management District compound in South Dade. U.S. Sugar is refilling the tanks as necessary.

The sugar company has also sent four front-end loaders, four large-wheel tractors and several large chain saws with crew to assist in efforts to open streets. A 100-kilowatt generator has been sent to the South Dade Government Center and a 15-kilowatt generator was sent to a local propane gas distributor to enable him to provide gas for cooking.

The U.S. Sugar crews who are manning this equipment are commuting daily between Clewiston and South Dade, driving down in the morning and returning each night, so that they do not burden the already overtaxed resources of the disaster area.

Dr. Hutton injured while preparing for storm

Dr. Robert Hutton of Pahokee was injured while preparing for Hurricane Andrew August 23. His wife said he was on a ladder boarding up windows when apparently the ladder slipped and he fell, breaking both his ankles. "He's doing fine," she said, "and will be back to work in a few weeks, using a motorized chair."

Also called sick headaches, a typical migraine attack begins with a dull throbbing ache in one area of the head and progresses to a piercing pain. These tortuous attacks may be preceded by a change in the field of vision - a flickering before the eyes, flashes of light or a partial blocking of the vision. They are sometimes accompanied by nausea or vomiting. They are seldom relieved by aspirin. Their duration is from 2 to 48 hours.

On the scene in Miami...Members of the newly formed Glades Relief Volunteers have been making trips to Dade County to take supplies and help do whatever they can.

Pahokee people are helping police and their families in Dade County

Pahokee—What started out as a small operation to assist police officers and their families in Dade County after Hurricane Andrew has turned out to be a community affair, according to Lt. Danny Jones.

Lt. Jones said Pahokee has a Mobile Command Post (similar to an ambulance) that they had planned to take to Dade County to assist police officers and their families.

"Many of them have also lost their home," he said, "and they are so busy taking care of others that they haven't been taking care of themselves," he said. Police officers in Pahokee started asking for donations this week and in eight hours had enough supplies to send down two semi-trucks full, one of ice and water and another of clothing and food.

"The people in Pahokee opened up and gave from their hearts," said Lt. Jones.

Last Friday, the group took down tools and chains saws to help fellow officers.

"Most of the merchants in town really gave," said Lt. Jones as well as the schools and local citizens.

Caller wants holding pond filled in

Yes. I saw the picture in The Sun (Aug. 20) of them holding up an old tire and saying this is one way to get rid of mosquitoes by getting rid of the tires.

What they ought to do is go over to the new Discount Auto Parts Store that's got that holding pond.

Who ever is responsible for building that holding pond needs it in their back yard and let them see how many mosquitoes are breeding in that place.

If they want to do something about mosquitoes, they should take a dump truck and fill that holding pond up.

Editor's note: I spoke with the assistant manager of Discount Auto who said the holding pond is on their property, but they did not understand why it existed.

I then called the Planning and Zoning department at the City of Belle Glade and spoke with the Administrator Gene Simmons. He said the holding pond was required for drainage of the pavements. He said the city has contacted Discount Auto Parts and they are going to spray the pond for mosquitoes.

He wants headlines back in Shopper

Yes. My name's Mike with Mike's Home Improvements. I've got an ad in your Shopper. Ever since you took out the headline "Business Services" I've only had three calls in the last month.

I used to get three to four calls a week the way it was before.

People are calling me and saying "I just happened to find your ad in the paper" and so that tells me I'm missing a lot of calls.

I'd appreciate it if you could headline everything and that way maybe I'll be able to get my calls 'cause as it is now, I'm losing my calls.

That would really benefit me. I've had my ad in there since the first of the year and I don't want to take it out, but I can't afford to keep it in the way it is now.

Oracion Pavorosa

Ven, Señor nuestro Jesucristo. Te lo pedimos humildemente. Mira lo que está pasando. No mires esto que nos desvasta, como cuando colgado de la Cruz, resistías con estoicismo el dolor que traspasaba tu mente, tus carnes y tus huesos.

Míralo, con tus ojos Divinos de Hijo de Dios hecho hombre, como cuando tus pupilas se anegaron en lágrimas ante la tumba de tu amigo Lazaro.

El estoicismo nos lo inspiramos después, tras las huellas que deje la avalancha de angustias que hoy - una noche sin días - desgarró las entrañas de tus hijos.

El estoicismo vendrá después cuando parezca como que se les está agotando a ellos el venero de lágrimas que les mantiene aniestesiado sus ojos y les impide ver y medir en todo su realismo la magnitud de esta tragedia. Hambrue, sudor y lagrimas se ciernen sobre nosotros en las personas de miles de nuestros hermanos.

Jesús, prestaless tus lagrimas. Que unidas a las de ellos contribuyan a fertilizarles el corazón y a conservarles la cordura de sus mentes. Si hubieras estado aquí estado aquí, nuestro hermano Lazaro no hubiera muerto." Ese grito de Marta y Maria retumba hoy de entre los escombros de miles de viviendas donde están sepultador el esfuerzo y las ilusiones de tantos de tus hijos. ## Letters to the editor

Dear Editor:

I realize we have just had a major hurricane hit South Florida, leaving many homeless and with many other adversities to overcome. My heart goes out to them and I most definitely think we should do everything in our power to help them.

The SWIM Bill is another problem for South Florida, which is being addressed daily by the farming industry. Now we have the North American Free Trade Agreement. This bill would very well be the straw that broke the camel's back. Congressman Tom Lewis is screaming "No" along with us.

This bill will affect our 6.2 billion dollar industry in Florida, the second largest. Unless something can be done to put a halt to this devastating agreement, 60,000 people will be out of jobs plus some 24,000 field workers for a total of 84,000 people.

We cannot have 84,000 or more people unemployed in Florida. Look at the unemployment rate now!

In my opinion, we are being sold out - "we" being agriculture. This is a nightmare! Someone has to care about the citizens and their livelihood. Our pioneers worked under the worst of conditions to begin farming in this area and worked to have something to leave for the next generation and the next. And for what? So another country can take over our industry.

The rug is being pulled out from under us! We are losers, the citizens of the United States, those who want good paying jobs and consumers who want enforced safety rules for food that is put on our tables.

There is no economic justification for granting Mexico preferred access to United States markets since Mexican producers are less efficient than our producers and are generously supported by the Mexican government.

I am truly frightened that this could very well be the last of the last frontier.

Have we done wrong trying to make this area a place to live and be productive? NO! Do we rely on our government to protect its own people? Yes!

We are well aware Lake Okeechobee does not belong to the farmers, yet the land around this great lake can produce enough food to feed millions of people. Do we not need to feed people or is it just a foreign country that should be doing this? Our people will be jobless!

We could move, but where? We are farmers. This is what we know. This is what we have been taught.

Our problems are escalating so fast we must try to stop this run away train. In the past we have jokingly said, "I will bring the flag because I will be the last to leave. This is no joke, no nightmare. It is reality.

Calls have been made, letters have been written, personal contacts made. What else can we do?

Now that the other shoe has been dropped and we know what can happen to us, the President said it was unlawful to turn people away from our shores. Is it lawful to jeopardize an entire industry, especially one who supplies some of our basic commodities...food?

This is one thing no one can live without!

Dear Editor:

I just want to remind all my friends and relatives that I have retired and moved to Interlachen, Florida as of August 27.

Bob and I would be so happy for you to write, call or come to visit us.

We have a lovely place, 106 Evergreen Court on Lake Ida on Highway 20 between Gainesville and Palatka, Florida. The lake is beautiful, good fishing, swimming, skiing, and we can live there year-round. We celebrated our second wedding anniversary June 29th.

Going into retirement, this move will keep me busy for a while. After living in Belle Glade since 1940 and working at the City Hall for 30 1/2 years, I'm really gonna miss all my friends and relatives in the Glades area.

My retirement gift from the City was "A Paddle Boat" with pontoons and a bimini roof. The City Hall employees gave me a beautiful going away party on August 25th. It was really a surprise. Come and see me and I will take you out for a ride on the paddle boat, but you may have to help pedal. I love it!

You can write to us at: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mrozinski, P.O. Box 345, Interlachen, Florida 32148. Or call us at 1-904-684-1160.

Always, with love

How to help your child succeed in school

Teachers are opening their classroom doors and welcoming thousands of students back to another school year. The common goal of all teachers is to prepare these students for the challenges and responsibilities that await them in the future.

Next to the students themselves, parents and teachers have the most vital roles to perform in the educational process. Sadly, little attention is given to helping parents become better informed on the roles they can perform in helping their children succeed in school.

Here are some ideas for parents:

- Have a strategy-planning session with your child. Help your child identify realistic goals, set priorities and write down how the goals will be met.

- Ask your child to show you the course outline for all classes. These are prepared by teachers and provide the purpose of the course, learning objectives, grading scale and other important criteria. It is important that parents and children understand the course outline and criteria. If your child does not receive outlines, request them from the teachers and call for clarification, if necessary.

- Monitor your child's study habits. Help the child stick to a plan. If homework is planned from 3 p.m. to 4:30 p.m., see that the homework is done then. After a few weeks, the habit will be developed and your help will not be as necessary. Don't give your child opportunities to develop non-productive study habits. Be tough.

- Monitor the homework load. If your child says the teacher doesn't give any homework or seems to be spending an excessive amount of time on homework, find out why.

- Make certain your child's class materials are organized. Organization is a key to academic success.

- Know when your child will have a test, essay, project or other important activity. Help your child study for a test. Read the essay and share your view. Assist and support, but never do the work for your child. Look forward to the results.

- Contact teachers and guidance counselors before there are problems. Give them your work number and share information about your child that will help them. However, if you only communicate negative comments, expect to be ignored.

- Encourage your child, but let your child know that you will love her or him regardless of grades.

- Help your child establish good health habits. Sufficient sleep and nutritious food are very important. A hungry mind has trouble concentrating.

- Turn the evening meal into an opportunity to discover what your child learned and did at school. Don't just listen; discuss. Make this the time of day your child looks forward to because you will listen and make him or her feel good.

- Visit your child's school to meet the teachers and administrators. During parent's night, listen closely to the principal. The principal sets the tone for the school.

- Read the students' code of conduct. Become familiar with the school's disciplinary policies and the due-process rights available to you and your child.

- Insist upon regular school attendance. Plan family vacations so they do not conflict with the school schedule.

- Act quickly when you see a problem developing. Don't hesitate to call your child's guidance counselor to request a progress report.

- When your child earns poor grades, it is especially important to praise, encourage and offer help. Research shows that grades will get even worse when your reaction to poor grades is to become emotionally upset.

Students at all grade levels benefit when the parents are active, caring participants in the educational process. By encouraging diligent study and discouraging an "I'll-just-get-by" attitude, parents can make a significant contribution to their children's education.

According to Stanford University professor M. Dembo, the most positive kind of parents are the "authoritarian" parents who expect mature behavior from the child, set and enforce clear standards, encourage the child's independence and individuality, recognize rights of parents and children and develop open communication.

Franklin D. Roosevelt said, "We cannot always build a better future for our youth, but we can build our youth for the future." Let us focus attention on building our youth for the future by working together. When teachers, parents and communities work together and are child-centered, our schools work well. When our schools work well, our children succeed. And when our children succeed, all of us can look forward to a better future.

Good luck.

Caller wants holding pond filled in

Yes. I saw the picture in The Sun (Aug. 20) of them holding up an old tire and saying this is one way to get rid of mosquitoes by getting rid of the tires.

What they ought to do is go over to the new Discount Auto Parts Store that's got that holding pond.

Who ever is responsible for building that holding pond needs it in their back yard, and let them see how many mosquitoes are breeding in that place.

If they want to do something about mosquitoes, they should take a dump truck and fill that holding pond up.

Editor's note: I spoke with the assistant manager of Discount Auto who said the holding pond is on their property, but they did not understand why it existed.

I then called the Planning and Zoning department at the City of Belle Glade and spoke with the Administrator Gene Simmons. He said the holding pond was required for drainage of the pavements. He said the city has contacted Discount Auto Parts and they are going to spray the pond for mosquitoes.

He wants headlines back in Shopper

Yes. My name's Mike with Mike's Home Improvements. I've got an ad in your Shopper. Ever since you took out the headline "Business Services" I've only had three calls in the last month.

I used to get three to four calls a week the way it was before.

People are calling me and saying "I just happened to find your ad in the paper" and so that tells me I'm missing a lot of calls.

I'd appreciate it if you could headline everything and that way maybe I'll be able to get my calls 'cause as it is now, I'm losing my calls.

That would really benefit me. I've had my ad in there since the first of the year and I don't want to take it out, but I can't afford to keep it in the way it is now.

Oracion Pavorosa

Ven, Señor nuestro Jesucristo. Te lo pedimos humildemente. Mira lo que esta pasando. No mires esto que nos desvasta, como cuando colgado de la Cruz, resistías con estoicismo el dolor que traspasaba tu mente, tus carnes y tus huesos.

Miralo, con tus ojos Divinos de Hijo de Dios hecho hombre, como cuando tus pupilas se anegaron en lagrimas ante la tumba de tu amigo Lazaro.

El estoicismo no lo inspiraras después, tras las huellas que deja la avalancha de angustias que hoy -- una noche sin días -- desgarras las entrañas de tus hijos.

El estoicismo vendra después cuando parezca como que se les esta agotando a ellos el venero de legiramas que les mantiene aniestecido sus ojos y les impide ver y medir en todo su realismo la magnitud de esta tragedia. Hambre, sudor y lagrimas se ciernen sobre nosotros en las personas de miles de nuestros hermanos.

Dear Editor:

I became personally involved in Hurricane Andrew immediately because my daughter was living in one of the areas hardest hit. We received a request for water and ice and on Tuesday, Chuck Anderson and Brandon Markham were in the area passing out drinking water ice and food.

Subsequent trips were made on the following three days. We couldn't help a lot of people but one neighborhood was helped through the first few days when no state or federal aid was visible.

I know that a great many people in the Glades have helped but I would like to thank those who helped us in our efforts. I hope I don't miss anyone but if I do, you know who you are.

First of all, Chuck and Brandon for the many trips. Also Mary Kohick, Dorothy Repper, Marilyn Sims, Elizabeth McKeen, Everglades Memorial Hospital in Pahokee. Johnny Schlechter, James Chambliss, and West Technical Educational Center in Belle Glade.

We don't know the names of the people we helped and they don't know ours but I do know that they will never forget the kindness and feeling that they were not alone during those first difficult hours.

Sincerely,
Joan Anderson

Dear Editor:

Dear Editor:

I'm home, I'm tired, and my feet hurt. But compared to the thousands of people in Dade County, the victims of Hurricane Andrew, my pains are nothing.

The physical and mental anguish we one hundred or so Glades area relief volunteers felt is nothing. Nothing that is, compared to the tired, hungry, physically and mentally injured people of Dade County's South Miami Heights District, where we brought much needed relief. It will be etched in our memories forever.

Everyday things we take for granted, these people need for basic life support. Sadly and unfortunately this basic life support had come only once prior to our arrival Saturday, and again Sunday.

Over the two days a total of about six full tractor trailers delivered food, water, ice, clothing, soaps, batteries, flashlights, candles, baby items, juice drinks, and a hot meal of hamburgers, hot dogs, barbecue chicken, and salad two days in a row.

The media provides awesome details of the damage wrought upon Dade County. However, nothing could bring it all into focus like being there first hand.

One can't imagine the confusion as hundreds of sheriffs, police, highway patrol, game and fish, Department of Transportation, fire, ambulance and Red Cross, and U.S. Army vehicles and helicopters sped around, lights and sirens blaring, rotors beating the air, seemingly going nowhere, yet ultimately rescuing somebody, somewhere.

Though panic was mostly unfound where we went, confusion was everywhere when we first arrived Saturday. As we went from place to place before two metro Dade deputies told us about the South Miami Heights District.

They had been unassisted since Wednesday, and were in need of help. This is where our story really begins, and there are many as if it were fate, our nursing team led by Mary Weeks, Director of Nursing and Bonnie Peacock, Emergency Room Supervisor, and their nurses from Glades General Hospital, were immediately thrown into action at the site treating a small child who had just been mauled by a family dog.

As we began uncovering and setting up an aid station for sick and injured, a kitchen area serving hot meals of barbecue chicken and burgers, beans, and salad, and the vital supplies of donated items from the Glades, people began to arrive.

As these tasks were being carried out, so was another. This task led by Jerry Tuliano from Glades General Hospital, along with a Co-op truck and driver, myself, Sandy Cavazos and four other ladies headed out with bagged goods to a senior citizens retirement center.

When we located it, we found an elderly lady sitting in the middle of her living room, what was left of it. The front of her living room and porch were gone. She told me her name was Rosie, Rosie, 89 years old, lived alone.

Rosie had come back at nine that morning. She wanted to clean up. It was now three o'clock in the afternoon. Rosie would not be picked up till five in the evening. As I looked around at the shattered glass around her, the wet carpet under her, and the destroyed remnants of her apartment, what was left of it, it was obvious she never would get it cleaned for weeks.

Added to Rosie's grief was the lack of electricity and running water. The excitement of two plastic bags of non-perishable goods and a hot meal were overwhelming. It would be her first in days. Sadly, it was time to leave, to look for more victims.

The next day was Sunday. Led by Ron Pittman, Clay Connell of Badcocks Furniture, and Larry Simmons of Larry's Appliances, along with all our Co-op drivers, and another group led by Lucia Alvarez, we returned to South Miami Heights Elementary School.

As we began to set up for our second day of assistance, the victims began arriving. Due to quick action by Lt. Harper of the Palm Beach County Sheriff's Office, Belle Glade Substation, and Danny Jones a Lt. at the Pahokee Police Department and Deputies Jeff Godfrey and Derrick Savage, an orderly line was established and the victims moved through our five stations of supplies with a lot less confusion than the day before.

At this point, Mrs. Alvarez, myself and one of her group, Jose, went back to the senior citizens retirement center where I met Rosie. Our mission was to deliver water to the elderly.

It would bring to the surface just how important our work was, as well as that of all the relief crews. After a brief talk with the Red Cross personnel, we were directed to an elderly 82 year old woman named Florence, who was in need of medical, as well as relief assistance. We, along with Atlantic Ambulance Personnel located Florence's apartment and Florence standing in three inches of water throughout her home. She had weathered out Hurricane Andrew in her home of 22 years. "Flo" as she liked to be called, had been walking in the water for six days.

She had swollen feet from the water, a contusion over her left eye, it rained in all night. The Paramedics and I and Mrs. Alvarez could not get Flo to go to a shelter. She wanted no medical care, and would not abandon her home, not even for a hot meal.

It was then that I made my decision. I told Mrs. Alvarez, I was staying and would need food, water, and ice for Flo, and a work crew for me. Soon, she returned with two of her crew. We got three from our crew and together, we got the water out, after moving the furniture, then covered it with plastic. We then iced down Flo's water and juices and cokes.

I got her some paper products. Though Flo said to me she wasn't used to so much attention. Her only bout of anger was caused over a neighbor who hadn't offered to get her to a phone to call her brother in Illinois in one of the few running cars left in the neighborhood.

As we prepared to leave, Flo, with her half weeks supply of food, to check on another couple, and as if on cue from the Lord, an unknown man rode up on a scooter to tell Flo her brother in Illinois had just called to check on her welfare. As it turned out, Flo's brother had called continuously till he found someone who knew the area. Finally if Flo's brother came down she would leave.

The other part of my crew had found an elderly man with a heart condition and out of nitro tablets. Debbie and Ester, paramedic students, somehow managed to see he got his medication and got ice for his diabetic neighbor who was unable to keep his insulin cold. They possibly saved both these 90-year-old men's lives.

Metro-Dade Police and a patrol from the U.S. Army's 82nd Airborne unit promised us they would periodically check on our new friends.

In conclusion, it's hard to say who really benefited the most from the crossing of our paths. They, for the help we brought into their tragic lives or us to realize the devastation we were spared in Palm Beach County and how minimal our problems are right now.

As we prepared to leave and to our surprise a sign had been hung on a destroyed pole or tree stump. On it were the words which made our efforts worth while, "Thanks Glades People."

Sincerely,
E.P. Anthony

escogido esta lleno de luces contrarias a las tuyas. Pero esto que nos esta aconteciendo como secuela de la furia desatada por los vientos, obedeciendo a fenomenos naturales, no puede ser un castigo del Cielo.

Hemos lagado con nuestros pecados las manos de la Justicia infinita. Ahora tienen que ser manos de Misericordia. Porque manos asi lagadas no pueden herir, solo sirven para sostener y acariciar.

Padre, nuestros hermanos necesitan apoyarse en ellas. A medida que se aleja el instante de la tragedia, el tiempo los devora. Inspíralos

Y a nosotros, los de la otra orilla, observadores adoloridos pero indemnes, permitenos Padre, que la luz de tu verdad nos guie para que aprendamos a reflexionar intensamente, sin necesidad de una tragedia, en la vida de otros seres humanos; para que pobres y ricos se sientan hermanos; para que dejemos a un lado el hedonismo y no demos tanta importancia a las cosas fatuas, vacias, que rodean nuestras vidas.

Dear Editor:

I would like to thank all of the people who contributed their time, money, equipment and their personal involvement in our recent relief trip to South Dade County. This tragedy has touched all of our hearts as never before and has brought our community together for the good of those less fortunate than us.

The recent Post article unfortunately could not mention all of the names of the Glades area businesses and people involved in this relief effort, but the article mentioned a particular incident involving assistance that members of our group gave an elderly woman in cleaning and restoring her house.

I would like to personally thank a gentleman by the name of Ed (last name unknown to me) who was there with his total support. I am sure he will never be forgotten by this lady because to her he was an angel.

We are all together in this. Please continue to help. The people in our area are wonderful and in this tragedy, we have found strength in each other.

Sincerely,
Luisa Alvarez

Dear Editor:

Knowing that you probably are hearing and reading some criticisms about our industry's labor practices, I thought I should contact you directly to explain the facts behind those sensationalized reports.

Last month, Palm Beach Circuit Judge Lucy Brown made a mind-boggling ruling in which she declared that West Indian sugarcane cutters had been shorted millions of dollars in wages due them. Naturally, we are appealing her ruling and fully expect that the appeal will succeed. However, as responsible members of the business community, it hurts us to think that our colleagues and neighbors might believe in the interim that we have been "cheating" or "exploiting" our employees.

Here are the facts: Guest worker cane cutters are guaranteed a minimum hourly rate of more than $5.30 per hour and actually earn an average of nearly $7 per hour. No one has ever claimed that the workers were paid by the ton. Their contract specifies a minimum hourly wage and allows the opportunity to make more per hour in the higher yielding fields.

In a suit brought by advocacy lawyers, Judge Brown ignored the actual labor contract. In fact, no evidence was offered to suggest that the contract was violated. Rather, Judge Brown ruled, without hearing evidence in the case, that the contract is not what counts.

She based her ruling on the job description used by the Florida employment service to advertise the work domestically in order to certify the need to import guest workers. That description was intended only to show the level of difficulty of the work. It is not a contract. The specific language she cited was, in fact, written and required by the U.S. Department of Labor over the objections of the sugar industry.

We in the sugar industry are shocked by the judge's interpretation. More, we are saddened by the impact of this ruling on our reputations and on the guest worker program itself. As a result of this ruling, the process of mechanizing the harvest has been speeded up. The regrettable consequence of that speed-up will be higher unemployment in rural Jamaica, however cane cutters earn only $3 per day.

I thank you for taking the time to read this update. We know that as business people you understand that early reports sometimes are very misleading. If you have any questions, please don't hesitate to give me a call.

Exotic animals escaped during Andrew's winds

Hurricane Andrew's wrath took a bizarre twist when the storm destroyed or damaged Miami's exotic animal facilities and liberated an undetermined number of exotic wild animals. The Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission has dispatched four wildlife inspectors to evaluate the scope of the problem and to firm up a plan for regaining control of the escaped animals. Wildlife inspectors are specialized wildlife officers with degrees in biological sciences and special skills in identifying and handling non-native animals.

Officials have determined that escaped animals include monkeys, baboons, reptiles, amphibians and birds. The escape of venomous reptiles has not been confirmed, although that possibility exists.

While the exact number of escaped exotics which survived the storm is unknown, thousands are missing from their enclosures. There were approximately 215 wildlife dealers operating in the affected area.

Maj. Lyle Hill, who is coordinating the Commission's efforts to regain control of the animals, said there is no truth to the rumors that some of the 300 monkeys that escaped from the University of Miami's Perrine laboratory were infected with the HIV virus.

However, monkeys are dangerous, aside from their disease potential. Monkeys are expected to begin foraging for food in troops and could get into confrontations with people or pets. Frightened monkeys can be ferocious fighters.

Commission officers are working closely with owners of exotic animal businesses to recapture their stock. The dealers now have capture crews working to recover their animals. Because of the magnitude of the problem, it will be some time before the animals can be found and captured. Many may survive and compromise the fragile south Florida ecosystem.

Meanwhile, officials urge anyone who spots free-roaming exotic animals to contact local animal control units or the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission. Hill urges the public to refrain from touching or attempting to capture any exotic animals themselves.

Letters to the editor

Dear Editor:

I became personally involved in Hurricane Andrew immediately because my daughter was living in one of the areas hardest hit. We received a request for water and ice and on Tuesday, Chuck Anderson and Brandon Markham were in the area passing out drinking water and food.

Subsequent trips were made on the following three days. We couldn't help a lot of people but one neighborhood was helped through the first few days when no staff or federal aid was visible.

I know that a great many people in the Glades have helped but I would like to thank those who helped us in our efforts. I hope I don't miss anyone but if I do, you know who you are.

First of all, Chuck and Brandon for the many trips. Also Mary Kohick, Dorothy Repper, Marilyn Sims, Elizabeth McKeehan, Everglades Memorial Hospital in Pahokee, Johnny Schleeter, James Chamblee, and West Technical Educational Center in Belle Glade.

We don't know the names of the people we helped and they don't know ours but I do know that they will never forget the kindness and feeling that they were not alone during those first difficult hours.

Sincerely,
Joan Anderson

and Larry Simmons of Larry's Appliances, along with all our Co-op drivers, and another group led by Lucia Alvarez, we returned to South Miami Heights Elementary School.

As we began to set up for our second day of assistance, the victims began arriving. Due to quick action by Lt. Harper of the Palm Beach County Sheriff's Office, Belle Glade Substation, and Danny Jones a Lt. at the Pahokee Police Department and Deputies Jeff Godfrey and Derrick Savage, an orderly line was established and the victims moved through our five stations of supplies with a lot less confusion than the day before.

At this point, Mrs. Alvarez, myself and one of her group, Jose, went back to the senior citizens retirement center where I met Rosie. Our mission was to deliver water to the elderly.

It would bring to the surface just how important our work was, as well as that of all the relief crews. After a brief talk with the Red Cross personnel, we were directed to an elderly 82 year old woman named Florence, who was in need of medical, as well as relief assistance. We, along with Atlantic Ambulance Personnel located Florence's apartment and Florence standing in three inches of water throughout her home. ## Dear Editor:

I'm home, I'm tired, and my feet hurt. But compared to the thousands of people in Dade County, the victims of Hurricane Andrew, my pains are nothing.

The physical and mental anguish we one hundred or so Glades area relief volunteers felt is nothing. Nothing that is, compared to the tired, hungry, physically and mentally injured people of Dade County's South Miami Heights District, where we brought much needed relief. It will be etched in our memories forever.

Everyday things we take for granted, these people need for basic life support. Sadly and unfortunately this basic life support had come only once prior to our arrival Saturday, and again Sunday.

Over the two days a total of about six full tractor trailers delivered food, water, ice, clothing, soaps, batteries, flashlights, candles, baby items, juice drinks, and a hot meal of hamburgers, hot dogs, barbecue chicken, and salad two days in a row.

The media provides awesome details of the damage wrought upon Dade County. However, nothing could bring it all into focus like being there first hand.

One can't imagine the confusion as hundreds of sheriffs, police, highway patrol, game and fish, Department of Transportation, fire, ambulance and Red Cross, and U.S. Army vehicles and helicopters sped around, lights and sirens blaring, rotors beating the air, seemingly going nowhere, yet ultimately rescuing somebody, somewhere.

Though panic was mostly unfound where we were, confusion was everywhere when we first arrived Saturday. As we went from place to place before two metro Dade deputies told us about the South Miami Heights District.

They had been unassisted since Wednesday, and were in need of help. This is where our story really begins, and there are many as if it were fate, our nursing team led by Mary Weeks, Director of Nursing and Bonnie Peacock, Emergency Room Supervisor, and their nurses from Glades General Hospital, were immediately thrown into action at the site treating a small child who had just been mauled by a family dog.

As we began uncovering and setting up an aid station for sick and injured, a kitchen area serving hot meals of barbecue chicken and burgers, beans, and salad, and the vital supplies of donated items from the Glades, people began to arrive.

As these tasks were being carried out, so was another. This task led by Jerry Tuliano from Glades General Hospital, along with a Co-op truck and driver, myself, Sandy Cavazos and four other ladies headed out with bagged goods to a senior citizens retirement center.

When we located it, we found an elderly lady sitting in the middle of her living room, what was left of it. The front of her living room and porch were gone. She told me her name was Rosie. Rosie, 89 years old, lived alone.

Rosie had come back at nine that morning. She wanted to clean up. It was now three o'clock in the afternoon. Rosie would not be picked up till five in the evening. As I looked around at the shattered glass around her, the wet carpet under her, and the destroyed remnants of her apartment, what was left of it, it was obvious she never would get it cleaned for weeks.

Added to Rosie's grief was the lack of electricity and running water. The excitement of two plastic bags of non-perishable goods and a hot meal were overwhelming. It would be her first in days. Sadly, it was time to leave, to look for more victims.

The next day was Sunday. Led by Ron Pittman, Clay Connell of Badcocks Furniture, MEOW....Dave Maehr, Wildlife Biologist Manager in charge of Florida wildlife holds Florida Panther kittens.

Two Florida panther kittens found and doing well in captivity

Two Florida panther kittens, just eleven days old, were taken from the wild by researchers Thursday and will reside at the Jacksonville Zoo.

The kittens - one male and one female - eventually will take part in the captive breeding efforts to save the Florida panther from the threat of extinction. Zoo officials are incubating the kittens in incubators, and report that both seem to be in good health and already have gained some weight since their capture.

Panther No. 23 is the mother of the two kittens. She was born in the Everglades National Park. Researchers said she was separated from her mother when she was a kitten. After an unsuccessful attempt to reunite No. 23 with her mother, she was kept in captivity until she was old enough to be released and survive on her own.

Although No. 23 was released back into the Everglades National Park, she relocated to the adjacent Big Cypress National Preserve during her first year of release, where she has remained. No. 23 has been monitored by scientists from the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, National Park Service and Florida Department of Natural Resources since she was returned to the wild a couple of years ago.

Scientists who track the movements and behavior of Florida panthers in the wild in south Florida noted recently that No. 23 was returning to the same site almost daily for over a week. That kind of pattern is a female panther generally indicates the cat may have borne a litter. Also, No. 23 had been tracked in the company of male panther No. 42 three months ago.

Since No. 23 wears a radio collar that enables researchers to pinpoint her location, scientists were able to move in and remove the kittens after the adult cat left her den around 4 p.m. Thursday. National Park Service Biologists Deborah Jansen worked with Commission Officials Dave Maehr, Jay Roof, Dr. Carolyn Glass and Pauline Nol in finding and capturing the kittens.

The mother cat will not grieve for the kittens. In fact, the adult females typically mate again a month or two after they lose their newborn kittens, so removal of No. 23's kittens will ultimately serve to increase the overall population of the highly endangered Florida panther, known to scientists as Felis concolor coryi.

Researchers removed one other newborn kitten from the wild last spring. That animal is doing well at Tampa's Lowry Park Zoo.

How to appeal your property taxes

The Value Adjustment Board in conjunction with the County's Department of Public Affairs has produced a brochure and short video to help area property owners understand how to appeal their property assessments.

The brochure is packed with information, explaining what property owners can do if they believe their assessment is incorrect.

It gives steps to file a petition, and explains exactly what the property owner must do to begin the process of challenging his assessment.

The five-minute video mirrors the brochure and walks the property owner through the process.

Property tax notices were mailed this week, and homeowners have until September 11 to file a petition appealing their assessment.

The video will run on the County's Education and Government Channel 20, Monday through Friday at 9 a.m., 4 p.m., and 7:30 p.m., beginning Monday August 25 through September 11. The video will also be available at all County library branches.

The brochure can be picked up at any of the County's libraries, property appraiser's offices, and courthouses, or by calling the Value Adjustment Board office at 355-6289.

Contract awarded

The Palm Beach County Commission last Tuesday awarded a $7.5 million contract to J.W. Cheatham Incorporated for the construction of phase 1 of the North County General Aviation Airport. (5-1, Commissioner Maude Ford Lee voting no, Commissioner Mary McCarty absent).

J.W. Cheatham Inc., was found to be the lowest responsive/responsible bidder on the project.

The contract calls for clearing of the property, and entrance road, two runways and taxiways. Work is to begin in 30 days.

The second phase of the project will include the construction of the terminal, hangars and apron.

In other action - the Commission:

• Approved a $42,347 contract - with - Murphy Construction, the lowest responsible bidder, for the construction of Duda Road Bridge improvements. (6-0, Commissioner Mary McCarty absent).

• Denied a motion to adopt an ordinance which would have given the authority to appoint the medical examiner for Palm Beach County to the County Commission. (3-2, Commissioners Carol Elmqvist and Carol Roberts voting no, and Commissioners Karen Marcus and Mary McCarty absent).

AfriCamp for kids ended Saturday

By Cartheda Konchellah
Special to THE SUN

The Nora Neale Hurston Roof Garden Museum's summer research and publishing camp ended Saturday, August 22nd with a program featuring presentations by the researchers and formal issuance of certificates and awards to 23 campers.

The Glades area pre-teens and teenagers involved in the history-making project conducted research on Belle Glade's Black pioneers and early community development organizations for two weeks, beginning August 3.

A third week was spent at Lake Byrd Conference Center in Avon Park, where the young researchers participated in editing activities designed to streamline their voluminous research into an activity/coloring book for 3 to 5 year-olds.

While at Lake Byrd, the campers also took part in many recreational activities, including swimming, volleyball, ping pong, hiking and in-door board and card games. Every evening, campers enjoyed a movie.

Each camper will have a drawing of him or her included in the publication. AfriCamp Art Director, Donald Neal made drawings of each participant who completed the program.

The book produced from the 1992 AfriCamp project will be distributed free-of-charge to area 3 to 5 year-olds who are registered in day care centers and kindergartens.

The AfriCamp premiere publication is expected to be completed by September 30 and will be circulated in early October, said Hurston Museum Chief Executive Officer Cartheda Konchellah.

Mott's will furnish books for purchase

New books for local libraries is the goal of a program being sponsored by Mott's U.S.A. The

"Mott's Library Program" enhances a three-year reading program by Mott's that has provided over 200,000 elementary school classrooms with literature and learning materials since 1988. "Mott's is a staunch supporter of the need for Americans to read," said Steve Wasik, a spokesperson for Mott's.

Mott's will provide new books in exchange for proofs-of-purchase from its Apple Juice and Apple Sauce brands collected by public libraries. This special promotion is conducted in cooperation with you. Please call Friends of Libraries, U.S.A., and will provide up to $500,000 worth of books and materials to libraries nationwide.

The Mott's promotion will run from September 1 through November 30, 1992. All 12 of our Palm Beach County Library System's locations will be participating in this promotion and we plan to purchase children's books with the funds collected from Mott's. Bring your Mott's proofs-of-purchase and look for special Mott's posters, bookmarks and collection boxes in the Palm Beach County Library System locations near you. # Glades Relief Volunteers continue

By Bill Phillips
Staff reporter

"We shall return," the Glades Area Relief Volunteers promised residents in South Miami Heights, that was devastated by Hurricane Andrew. In a meeting at Glades General Hospital held Tuesday night the group made plans on how to get hot meals set up for this coming weekend. They plan on serving hamburgers and baked beans. Clay Connell said, "I know it's a holiday weekend but those people aren't having a holiday and neither are we."

Thursday the group plans to take down three semi-tractor trailer loads of food and supplies to the ravaged hurricane victims.

Citizens wishing to help with the hot meals the group is planning for this coming weekend should contact 996-7395 after 5 p.m. Luisa Alvarez said they need all the volunteers they can get. "It does something to you when you are able to hand a hungry person a hot meal. A hot meal lifts the spirit and shows we care."

Storm victims need can openers, paper towels, diapers, baby food, baby juice, baby wipes, toothbrushes, tooth paste, personal toilet articles, shaving cream, disposable razors, shaving cream, Bleach (in one gallon bottles so the victims can carry it to their homes) flashlights, batteries, size D, candles, disposable lighters, (matches tend to get wet), Band Aids, peroxide, bug repellent, sun screen, and any personal item the average person needs during the day (items we take for granted).

If you don't know what to buy and want to help with the hot meals call 996-6571 (Glades General Hospital) and ask for extension 440. The Glades Relief Volunteers need money to buy the hot meals in bulk. Bulk buying is cheaper and can provide more for your dollar. A donation may be the best route to take to insure these hot meals continue. Remember this group is made up of local Glades residents, neighbors you can trust. The food will be delivered according to Larry in the Simmons of Larry's Appliance and Video Center in Belle Glade. Clay Connell of Badcocks Furniture said he will have three semi-tractor trailers available this week.

Pahokee has joined in the effort with the Glades Relief Volunteers to make the group even stronger. Mayor Ramon Horta will be taking down drinks for the victims and is the coordinator for the Pahokee effort. In Pahokee call 924-5534 and ask for the city clerk's office.

Volunteers are needed every weekend so if you can't go this time schedule for next week by calling 996-7395. Transportation is provided from a central area.

"This is a serious matter and we are in it for the long haul. Whatever it takes and as long as it takes we will continue making trips until we are no longer needed," said Ron Pittman of Glades General Hospital.

It is hoped that this weekend medical personnel from both Everglades Memorial and Glades General Hospital will be working hand in hand to help their neighbors to the south. A nurse can only do so much. The group hopes to have some volunteer doctors calling up to volunteer in this humanitarian effort.

"Remember the people we fed last week will be looking for us again this week at South Miami Heights Elementary School," said Luisa Alvarez. They may not have received anything since we left last Sunday. We anticipate we will serve about 10,000 hot meals over the weekend."

The Glades Relief Volunteers have already delivered eight semi-tractor trailer loads of food and necessary items to that community.

A Few Thoughts on Healing and Helping.

For many of us, the healing process will take months and even years. Rebuilding means more than restoring a wall, replacing a roof or planting a tree. Our hearts must heal as well.

As far as helping is concerned, Winn-Dixie is ready and committed to help. We want to be there when a baby needs formula, or when a worn parent needs food for an exhausted family.

Special thanks to all associates, friends and neighbors who have worked so diligently during these trying times.

May we somehow find the strength and patience to help one another as we make our lives whole again.

Winn-Dixie
Cares About Their Neighbors!

The devastation left behind by Hurricane Andrew defies words. Even pictures cannot fully tell the story of the people who are left homeless, hungry and nothing by the clothes on their backs.

These people are the reason Winn-Dixie is saying Ever-it-Up.

The proceeds of this program will allow the Salvation Army to help you neighbors in the south. The next time you shop at any Winn-Dixie store, just ask the cashier to Even Up you total to the next dollar or five dollars. Whatever you wish to donate will be a tremendous help to those who are desperately in need.

EVEN IT UP!
AND YOUR NEIGHBORS WILL BE THANKFUL TO YOU.
